

Presenting BOSS curated by Caro Daur

BOSS partners with the German entrepreneur on a new womenswear capsule

BOSS has announced a new capsule collection with Caro Daur. Coming this October, the collaboration is the result of a longstanding friendship between the entrepreneur and Chief Brand Officer, Ingo Wilts.

Staying true to the brand's elegant aesthetic, Wilts and Daur have fused their individual approaches to style, revisiting classic items from the BOSS Womenswear product range. While tailoring remains at its heart, the 'BOSS curated by Caro Daur' collection also includes elevated essentials, perfect for the modern woman on the go.

"I always try to be strategic about what I buy. I loved the idea of designing a capsule of must-have pieces that work for any occasion," Daur explains. Bridging the gap between work and leisure time, the line includes everything from timeless trench coats to staple knitwear in crisp cotton-twill and soft modal-blends.

In the eyes of Wilts, the partnership makes perfect sense: "A collaboration with Caro puts our clothes into context. Strong, successful women like her inspire us. For me, she is the perfect example of the modern BOSS woman."

Comprised of 15 pieces and two accessories, the capsule will be available from October 2020, in BOSS Stores globally and online at boss.com.